SUBJECT: GENERAL— Operational/REDFORD/ICIMEROVE/AKRATH

SPECIFIC— Incident of Security Nature - ANCAPELIN/1 []

Action Required: See paragraph 2 below.

SR/CI/DESINT

1. Forwarded as separate cover attachment A is [] report of an incident which occurred during a physical examination given to ANCAPELIN/1 at the local Army hospital on 15 January 1958. The examining physician, born in the West Ukraine, lived in Munich where he studied medicine before emigrating to the United States. Apparently trying to protect himself and various members of his family who are still living in the Ukraine, he felt obliged to go beyond his military and medical restrictions and cross-examine ANCAPELIN/1. ANCAPELIN/1, although taken by surprise at the physician's behavior, handled himself very well during the incident which he thought was distasteful. [] subsequent talk with ANCAPELIN/1 apparently had favorable results since ANCAPELIN/1 regarded the affair as one in which no damage was done in any way.

2. Later we obtained the physician's records locally from which data was extracted for the PRQ form which is forwarded as separate cover Attachment B. We request that routine checks be made at Headquarters on the physician and his relatives and that derogatory information only be forwarded to Munich Base. Note that the physician may now be a United States citizen; he filed his Declaration of Intent on 5 June 1950.

SUBJECT: Contact with AECAPLIN/1 on 15 January 1958 (CR #1) [REDACTED] 5421/R

1. The purpose of this contact was to escort AECAPLIN/1 to the 2nd Field Hospital for further examination as recommended by KUBARK physicians. Arrangements were made by [REDACTED] Details regarding paper processing at the hospital were taken care of by [REDACTED] for AECAPLIN/1 in pseudonym. Around 0850, AECAPLIN/1 took his turn as the last patient for his X-Ray. [REDACTED] was asked to leave the X-Ray preparation room when the doctor (Captain Nicholas Mary JACKIW, pronounced YATSKIV) indicated he could speak the German language. [REDACTED] waited in the waiting room adjacent to the X-Ray room.

2. After about 15-20 minutes had passed, the GI assistant, flustered and hurrying from the X-Ray room, signaled [REDACTED] that he could enter the room. As [REDACTED] entered, he heard AECAPLIN/1 half yell in anger, "Laurenti Stefanovych". AECAPLIN/1 turned to [REDACTED] and whispered that he had undergone a cross examination in the Ukrainian language. He found the entire matter to be distasteful and would relate the incident in detail later. When AECAPLIN/1 left the room to take X-Ray pictures in the next room, the doctor asked [REDACTED] a number of questions regarding AECAPLIN/1, i.e., re his identity, did AECAPLIN/1 work for the Americans, how AECAPLIN/1 got to the West, etc. The doctor fired the questions agitatedly, first in Ukrainian and then in English, and appeared to be offended when [REDACTED] told him that he had no apparent authority to ask such questions. The doctor walked out in the direction of the waiting room. [REDACTED] then went to the next room where he interpreted instructions from the X-Ray specialist. Before leaving this room, [REDACTED] learned from the GI the identity of the doctor.

3. Later, while waiting per request of the chief of this section, AECAPLIN/1 explained in detail what had gone on with the doctor in [REDACTED]'s absence. The doctor apparently in a very crude manner tried to extract personal data from AECAPLIN/1. The doctor first detected that German was not AECAPLIN/1's native language and fired a stream of questions to the point where AECAPLIN/1 became uncomfortable and finally admitted that he was not German but a Ukrainian. At this point, the doctor began speaking fluent Ukrainian and again fired questions to determine AECAPLIN/1's place of birth, method of entry into Germany, his occupation, his associates (he mentioned Petro SAMUTIN), if AECAPLIN/1 was authorized to undergo the GI series, etc. AECAPLIN/1, not expecting anything like this, naturally was caught unawares. However, he reasoned that the doctor undoubtedly was cleared by [REDACTED] office and therefore he had nothing to fear and that his only course was to try to evade the questioning as far as possible. AECAPLIN/1 told the doctor he was from the Lvov area but managed to evade identifying his home village. The point of interrogation, when [REDACTED] entered the room, centered around the doctor's attempt to learn AECAPLIN/1's true name.

4. [] went to the hospital later the same day to consult with the medical chief about the doctor's behavior and to make certain that the doctor would not talk about the incident to his possible Ukrainian emigre contacts in downtown Munich (the doctor specifically asked if AECAPLIN/1 had friends at the Ukrainian Free University in Munich). The medical chief admitted that the doctor had no right asking personal questions of AECAPLIN/1. The chief then explained that the doctor, following AECAPLIN/1's exam, checked with the chief personally if he'd authorized the examination of the person escorted by []. The chief assured the doctor that everything was in order.

5. It was felt that the chief, in taking the next step, would have a short interview with the doctor who has been at the hospital only about one month. It was decided that the chief would take advantage of his follow-up discussion to inform the doctor that examinations of such a nature do take place at the hospital with the chief's authorization and that it would not be necessary for the doctor to take independent measures to confirm the authorization.

6. Following the chief's interview with the doctor, the chief told [] the following. The doctor covered up the fact that he cross-examined AECAPLIN/1 but that when it "was obvious" to the doctor that AECAPLIN/1 was not a German, the doctor felt he should know more about AECAPLIN/1 since the doctor spent about five post-W W II years in Munich among the emigre politicians and does not trust any of them. The doctor felt that AECAPLIN/1 was one of these emigres. Further, the doctor protested [] queries regarding the doctor's identity since the doctor wanted to protect his relatives in the Ukraine.

7. [] thanked the medical chief for his assistance in the matter and it was agreed to forget about the incident unless the chief heard from [] in the future. It is noted that the chief offered his fullest cooperation to clear up the episode.

8. AECAPLIN/1, although he appeared somewhat excited and nervous, said that it was an experience that probably he will never forget. However, he took great pride in his ability to parry the doctor's style of "interrogation". AECAPLIN/1 jokingly added that if the doctor had elicited instead of using the direct, crude and angry interrogation technique, perhaps the doctor might have learned something about AECAPLIN/1.
